Thearpy for the Modern Mind

For hundreds of years patients who suffer from mental illness have continuously been mistreated, misprescribed and misunderstood. The use and testing of large psychiatric drugs have, in many cases, been completely detrimental to people who suffer from mental illness. This misuse has inflicted iatrogenic harm to millions of people. Cybin's mission is to stop this treatment and take a more natural approach to treating patients with mental illness. The use of psilocybin therapy has shown not only significant improvement in treating depression but also creating a sense of well-being. Some patients even experience realizations about the cause of their depression. Humans are very complex organisms that we don't fully understand. We need to take a step back and start embracing the natural world around us.

Cybin's mission is to create a revolutionary way to treat people with mental illness the human way. Thearpy for the modern mind.
